Prominent Young Lady Leaves Town.

Miss Clara Cummings, our well known and liked Postmistress leaves on Sunday for her home in Edmonton. Miss Cummings has been Postmistress here now for seven years, last April and during that time, has rendered the public the most satisfactory service. Among the young people of the town she was a favorite and they are glad to be of the opinion that Edmonton will not own her long and that she will return here to take up a different occupation in a short while.

In fact so strong was this opinion that on Tuesday evening the Belcher, O'Neil's and a number of her other young friends gathered in the Old F. H. Hall and gave her a surprise shower. It was a real shower and came about as strong as the one the weather is giving us.

The evening was pleasantly passed in dancing, cards and music. How's the home coming Billy?

Rev. A. Clemens Given Send Off.

On Sunday evening the Rev. A. Clemens of the Zion Evangelical Church, preached his farewell sermon. The church was filled to its capacity with interested listeners.

At the close of the service, the Pastor was detained with a unique surprise from members and adherents of the church when they presented him with a purse of cotton for his kind and faithful labors among this people. To this presentation the Rev. A. Clemens responded with gratitude for the token and expressed his best wishes to the people of Didsbury.

The meeting closed with wishing him God speed in his new field. Sunday Outings. Mr. Clemens is an ardent promoter of any cause that is for the betterment of humanity and the upbuilding of Christ's Kingdom.

In administrative circles it was emphasized that action taken today did not mean participation of the United States in any project of a world government or a world league. It was said that it was inevitable that the United States have an advisory part in the settlement of the vast economic and other problems growing out of the war. The settlements, it was explained, must necessarily affect the United States as well as the rest of the world.

Announcement that the invitation had been accepted came late in the day after the senate had adjourned. Republican senators generally, however, expressed their approval, while Democratic senators gave voice to disapproval and disappointment. Republican leaders took the view that the president's representatives would perform principally the function of obtaining information. Democratic leaders said they were disappointed because the president had not decided to have the government officially participate in the deliberations of the three bodies.

Take A Look Ahead

Are the people of Canada animated by the same spirit which was characteristic of them during the war, and which alone made possible the splendid contribution made by this Dominion to the winning of the war? In the dark days between August, 1914, and November, 1918, the national existence of this Dominion was threatened and the liberties of the whole world hung in the balance. Our independence has been maintained and our freedom made secure, thanks to the patriotism and self-sacrificing efforts of the average man and woman. With the removal of the danger that threatened, have we lost that fine enthusiasm for Canada and the Empire which made us willing to bear all things with fortitude that victory might be achieved? In other words, will Canadians be willing to die for Canada, are they now prepared to live for Canada?

These questions force themselves upon our consciences from a consideration of certain grave and serious facts. During the war Canadians sacrificed and saved. They economized and gave without stint in the national cause. There was nothing sparingly in their contributions to the national strength and they withheld nothing, neither their lives nor their worldly means, in the effort put forth to win. For these reasons the period of the Great War will always stand out as a glorious page in Canada's history.

Now that the compelling incentive of the war and the will to victory is removed, has that altogether worthy uplifting out of ourselves died? Or are Canadians ready now to give of themselves and their means to carry the Dominion forward to the proud position it should occupy among the nations? The war has left heavy national obligations which honor demands shall be met; it has created new problems which must be faced and solved; it has created new conditions calling for the best that each and all can contribute to the nation.

It was imperative during the war that all people should avoid extravagances in living and expenditures, that discipline and frugality should be added to the national strength. It is equally important they should now continue to practice these fine virtues in order that Canada may develop and prosper. Signs are not lacking, however, pointing to the fact that, unfortunately, many Canadians are not now being governed by the same motives which guided them during the war.

The trade returns clearly indicate that, taken as a whole, the people of Canada are spending too much and producing too little. At a time when Canadians should be laying as close as possible about in order to reduce our payments to other countries, the fact remains that we are buying more prodigally than ever before in our history, and that we are not producing for sale abroad anything like what should be produced. The result is, that whereas during the war there was a substantial balance of trade in favor of Canada, the reverse is now true, and there is a heavy and increasing debit balance against this country. As a consequence, we are continuing to suffer the national humiliation and loss of Canadian money being at a ruinous discount.

At this time when work is plentiful and wages high, it is not only a national duty, but plain commonsense for the individual, to save every dollar he can. This can best be done by cutting out all extravagances, particularly in the purchase of luxuries from abroad. There must inevitably be a recession from present high prices. A time of business depression will come sooner or later, and indications are not lacking that such a time is approaching. The far-seeing financial magnates and keen business men are preparing for it, and it behooves the farmer, workingman and average citizen to do likewise.

During the war, and while the work of destruction was in progress, an artificial demand for goods of all kinds was created, especially when millions of men were withdrawn from productive enterprises. Following the war there was feverish activity to make good the losses sustained by and in the war, and to restore the depleted stocks of goods the world over. The time approaches when this activity must cease because once again supply is overtaking the demand. Then must come reductions in prices and curtailment in work. A period of depression will follow.

This is not pessimism. It is but a frank statement of sound economic truth. It is logical and irrefutable. It is supported by all past history and every proven economic law. The wise man will be governed accordingly. Just as during the real estate boom, the far-seeing and wise man unloaded before it was too late and values began to decline, so today such men are not spending all their earnings but are preparing for the day when money will not come quite so readily. Furthermore, such men realize that dollars earned and saved by them now will have a much greater purchasing power when conditions and prices become more normal.

To the extent that Canadians now practice economy, Canada will be strong and able to successfully weather the storm and stress of financial and business depression when it comes.

A Menagerie for the E. P. Ranch

A dispatch from London, England, states that the Prince of Wales is collecting big game from Africa, as well as many smaller jungle animals from other countries, including Australia, for experimental purposes, in a small menagerie on his ranch in Alberta. Some of the Australian animals collected on his Australian tour accompanied him on this cruise on the Renown. The Prince plans to ship his collection to Alberta next spring.

To Wed Blacksmith's Daughter.

Announcement of the betrothal of the Hon. Louis Chandon Francis Temple, master of Kinloss, to Miss Katherine Jackson is made in the London Daily Mirror. The former is heir presumptive to the title of Baron of Kinloss, having succeeded his brother, the Hon. Richard George Grenville, who was killed at the front in 1914, and the bride-elect is the daughter of the village blacksmith, whose cottage and forge are just outside the gates of Stoke Park, the Kinloss homestead.

Germany's Merchant Fleet.

Today Germany's merchant fleet is smaller than it was in 1871. The Versailles Treaty cut the fleet. Germany now has but 100,000 tons of ships for overseas traffic with capacity of greater than 1,800 tons.

So He made the bugs and reptiles and poisonous insects and when He had finished His had some escape that were too bad to put into the Rattle Snake, the Hyena, the Scorpion and the Skunk, so He put all these together, covered it with muck, wrapped it with jealousy, marked it with a yellow streak and called it a KNOCKER."

INNISFAIR, FARMER FINED FOR STARTING FIRE

Innisfair, May 9th.—On Tuesday morning, the town fire brigade was called on to attend a prairie fire at the home of V.M. Morgan, about two and a half miles south of town, whose buildings were threatened with destruction. Sergt. Broadbent, A. P. P., attended the fire and organized the fire fighters and by hard work the danger was overcome. The fire appears to have started on the farm of a neighbor, O. Scarfe, who, in response to an invitation from the Sergeant, appeared before J.D. Laud, Jr., J. P., on Wednesday, charged with an infraction of the fire ordinance. Mr. Laud fined Scarfe $25 and costs. No damage resulted, except to grass lands burned over.

Mr. Ben Sherk came up from Delia last week on business, he says, but we are inclined to think Mr. Sherk thinks so much of his old friends and neighbors that it's something more than just business that brings him back.

Little Everett Blain had the misfortune to fall out of a tree and break his arm. It's twelve he has broken his arm in the last five months, it happened to be the other arm this time. Everett says he still has two legs and his neck to break yet and then he's through.

We have heard the W. I. will meet at the home of Frank Hazelton's, May 19th and Frank's to prepare and serve lunch. But we will wait till after lunch before criticizing.

HOW SHE WENT

A village girl eloped in her father's clothes and the next day the local paper came out with an account of the elopement headed: FLEES IN FATHER'S PANTS!

Birdseye View of the Tariff Budget

No general revision of the tariff schedule is to be made now.

Certain changes necessary to implement the trade agreement with the West Indies are made. These affect such products as cane, cocoa products, arrowroot, nutmeg, grapefruit, lime, coconuts, sugar, and rum.

Notice is given of two changes to be made in the Customs Act.

The purpose of the first is to secure a more efficient carrying out of the principle of dumping provisions, and has to do with the valuation on which duties are assessed. The act at present provides that the value shall be the "fair market value when sold for home consumption in the principal markets of the country whence and at the time when the goods were exported directly to Canada." The amendment will add to this "such value in no case to be lower than the whole sale price there of at such time and place" and in addition, provides that the value for duty shall not be less than the actual cost of production of similar goods at date of shipment direct to Canada, plus a reasonable profit thereon.

The other amendment relates to the valuation for customs purposes of foreign currency.

The present customs practice is to convert the foreign depreciated value into Canada on the basis of existing exchange rates. It is proposed that no reduction in excess of 50 per cent of the standard or un depreciated value will be allowed, no matter what the exchange rate is. Where the rate of exchange is adverse to Canada the value for duty will be computed at the rate of exchange existing on the date of the shipment of goods.

A change in the customs tariff, 1907, will also be made stipulating that all goods imported, capable of being marked, stamped, branded or labelled without injury, shall have indicated on them in English or French, the country of origin. This provision will come into force September 1, 1921.

TAXATION

The Business Profits War Tax will not be re-enacted. All the luxury taxes, these which were and those which were not levied, last December, will be abolished.

But in view of the necessities of revenue, duties will be levied on playing cards, wines and spirits. On playing cards not exceeding $24.00 a gross, 15 cents a pack. Duties equal to the former combined taxes will be maintained on wines, including champagne and sparkling wines.

Duties on spirits will be increased to a straight 10.00 a gallon customs rate, and the excise on spirits of local manufacture released for sale in Canada is 5.00 a gallon.

In connection with the latter item, however, arrangements will be made for a rebate of 50 per cent of the duties on alcohol to bona fide hospitals on spirits actually made by them for medicinal purposes.

The duties on alcohol used for patent and proprietary medicines and pharmaceutical preparations will be $2.40 per proof gallon which was the rate in effect before the luxury taxes of last year were imposed.

SALES TAX

No change will be made in the principle of the sales tax or in its extent it is a general turnover tax. Its operation will be confined as at present to sales of manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers and importers. The 1 per cent and 2 per cent rates on domestic transactions will, however, be increased to 1 and 2 percent respectively and the import rates will be 24 percent and 1 percent, these latter being 1 percent higher than the like domestic rate. The necessity or this lies in the fact that more than one sales tax is included in the finished article made in Canada, whereas on the imported article no sales tax is imposed on the materials entering into it.

A list of special exemptions will be continued, which will cover foodstuffs in their natural state, pitfall sale of farm products by the farmer or his own institution, as well as the first product of fisheries, mines and forests.

When the big studies of the moonlit lake had the craft the girl turned homeward on the path again. A tender smile was on her face, and the red blood was dancing in her veins. Her whole young being was alive and calling—calling—she wondered aloud.

Where the woodland trail met the creek path wide sheet of moonlight by shimmering reflections. When she reached this spot she clasped her hands and raised them to the deep chaotic arch of the sky.

"Boy," she breathed suddenly, "oh, boy!" Then the long lashes hid her eyes and something splashed upon the dead moss-covered leaves. "Oh, God! I mean," she whispered, "take care of him; take care of Boy!"

Far down in the dark swells a panther's eyes and a lion sent to swirl call from the marshlands. A bright light drifted across the moon and the path glowed. The girl quickened her pace into a run. As she rounded a curve in the path she gave a little cry.

Standing directly in the path was a man.

"Don't be afraid," he said, "it's only me."

"You?" she repeated. "Oh, yes, it's Mr. Simpson. I must leave you."

He did not attempt to move aside, and the girl's head went back and her eyes flashed.

"There he is past," she said to herself.

Simpson laughed.

"All in good time. But I want to say one thing first. Won't you listen, Gloss?"

"If it's what you tell before, I don't want to hear it," she answered.

"You—you can't keep me here; I'm dangerous—dangerous to you."

"Or you?" he laughed.

His name toward her and she recoiled.

PIMPLES ON FACE CUTICURA HEALS

Caused Disfigurement. Itchy and Burning. Had Restless Nights.

"My face came out in little pimples that were sore and it scratched so constantly, and they turned into scales, causing much discomfort. The skin was so itchy that I irritated it by scratching. The burning was fierce, and I had many restless nights."

"This trouble lasted about a year before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after using the ointment of Soap and two boxes of Cuticura I was healed." (Signed) W. BYRON, St. Charles, Que., Nov. 23, 1918.

"You held me once—in your arms," she panted, "and against my will. You mustn't hold me so again. If you do I'll kill you."

"I'll take the chance," he said hoarsely. "It's worth dying for."

She stood tall and white before him. He reached for her hands—then something, a new and strange helplessness, overpowered him, and he sank trembling on the moss.

"Mr. Simpson," said the girl quietly, "you must go—for your own sake."

"Gloss, oh, Gloss!" he murmured brokenly, "how I love you, girl! You cannot know how much I was mad—mad. Can you forgive me, Gloss?"

"No, I can't forgive you. I have no power to forgive you. It wasn't me you hurt once—it's not me you would hurt again."

"Don't say that," he cried. "I merely held you in my arms, and kissed you. Yes, I held you in my arms—I kissed you—"

He struggled to his feet, trembling, his hair matted to his brow with perspiration.

"Did I kiss you once," he gasped, "and I would give my life rather to undo it or to do it again."

"You haven't the power to do either," she said earnestly. "Believe me, you have not."

"You are right," he sighed. "Oh, yes, you are right. That other night when I met you on the path I was actuated by a passing fancy—just a passing fancy. I took you for my arms."

She struggled. "I kissed you. I looked into your soul—I looked into your soul and saw what I must forever be banished from. Gloss, Am I not punished? Do you think I can ever forget?"

"I—I don't know. Now, I must go."

"He stood aside and let her pass."

"Will you be strong?" he asked.

"He shivered, but his moving lips gave out no sound."

When the moon trailed down below the tree-fringe of the Point he was still standing where the girl had left him. The panther's howl was still, but away down in the muddy marshes the wind sent his weird cry to the cold stars.

CHAPTER XIV

• Paisley Reconverts.

The early autumn sunlight had fallen when Bill Paisley stepped from the wood into the follow. He dropped the long muzzle-loading rifle into the hollow of his arm and crept down toward the gathering dark toward Toberdore.

There was a light at wider Ross's, he whispered. "Now, I don't like that I'd find out your plans, we should know. I'll just drop over there again like. What I've heard concerns Watson and Parker aren't that and the teacher on the trail together, has aroused my suspicions to the boldest point. I hope he's at the wider's—perhaps I want to 'test' to know his better as Boy put it."

Tasley leaned against a tree and shivered slightly.

"He didn't like me very much. I could see that the other night, and I suppose it's natural that I shouldn't like the mouth of him."

He walked on. His feet making not the slightest sound upon the earth that once gleamed, would-burn beneath the moonlight. At the edge of the creek he stepped into a still and with one overstep of the foot he was in swamping into the rushes on the farther shore.

When Ross's house was built much after the style of the houses in Bushbuck's Place. It was built of log and concentrated of logs. The chimneys between the logs were filled with yellow-brown clay. Paisley approached the place cautiously, more or less hesitating as if he would draw back. He opened the door gently in response to a loud creak.

He entered, and looking about him, as though in search of somebody. A tall, slender woman, dressed in red, sat on a bench, and working a huge spinning wheel, turned as he entered, and without taking her pipe from her mouth, said shortly:

"That that do, Bill Paisley. And you, Tom Ross, stop talking! But cut."

A freckled face of about nine years from a corner and administered a faint white-knuckled to a slightly looking, pale, and slender boy.

"Hello, Bill," he said, "what's new?"

"I found that you and the rest of the Bushbuck's were still here," said the Colonel (Holliday) wanted to say, "you remember. What's the matter?"

"Want to keep our timber to make bows and arrows with," answered Paisley, "dirt. I'm a hunter of the wolf. You? Roman over there?"

"We've expected old Holliday down soon," said Tom. "I heard the boys say that the Colonel was coming in with a boat. Says he's going to have all your timber before his finger waves."

"Yes—I'll get it when Holliday comes over."

"Bill Paisley," frowned the woman, taking her pipe from her mouth, "no more—don't here, if you please."

"Excuse me, Mrs. Ross," said Bill from behind his hat.

Tom lifted the visitor gently with his bare feet, and Mrs. Ross, raising her smoke, went on:

grinned Paisley. "Wonder if he'd cut mine?"

The widow turned her black eyes upon him.

"Can you see the repeated. 'What do you talk about?'"

"Why, my hat," said Bill. "I wonder if he'd cut mine, so he's made such a good job of Tom's?"

Tom tilted and the woman turned her back on the man.

"Suing," she muttered. "Such a shaker!"

"Where's the teacher tonight?" asked Bill bitterly.

"Him and Mary Ann—" answered Tom.

But his mother, turning, quickly advanced upon him, and catching him by the collar with one powerful hand, administered to the other with a cuff that young Tom went spinning to his corner. The money, said he, was not under the teacher's chair.

"And how is Mary Ann?" asked Bill after a time. "Ain't seen her but once or twice for the last month. I suppose she often speaks of me, Mrs. Ross?"

"Indeed she doesn't, then, so you needn't flatter yourself. Mary Ann's got no use for me. Such a shaker, let alone a year's one who would make a joke at his own mother's funeral. So, there."

"If I ever made a joke at my mother's funeral it was 'cause I was too young to know better," said Paisley, slyly. "My little son died when I was born. I ought to be worth a whole heap, ain't it? He was bought at a big price."

Mothers' Advice

The responsibility for a daughter's future largely rests with the mother. The right influence and the right example at the proper time has not only saved the life but insured the success of many a beautiful girl. When a girl's thoughts become tinged with hesitations, doubts, or a disposition to sleep, pains in back or lower limbs and a desire for solitude, her mother should come to her aid and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, will at this time prepare the system for the coming changes and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities. The hands of women repeating in every part of the United States bear witness to the wonderful virtues of this medicine, and it is hard to find a mother who does not praise it.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for what it has done for my daughter. She was 15 years of age, very sickly and pale and she had to stay home from school most of the time. She suffered agonies from backache and dizziness and was without appetite. For a month she was under the doctor's care and got no better, always complaining about her back and the matter as I did not know what to do. I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I made up my mind to try it. She has taken five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and doesn't complain any more with her back and she is getting on her feet and is a healthy girl. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers and daughters."—Mrs. M. Brown, 616 Main Avenue, Danvers, N. H.

INDIAN WITCHCRAFT

The strange experience of O-ge-mas-es when Wus-ke-ningo, an Indian sorcerer, casts her evil spell.

By O-GE-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyrighted)

In the early seventies, being in charge of a Hudson's Bay Post on Lake Manitoba, where poisoning by native Indian medicine was prevalent, evidence was brought before myself and the local missionary, making a serious charge against an old woman named Wus-ke-ningo who, it was claimed, had given poison to one of the tribe whereby he was in danger of losing his life and at that time was lying in a semi-paralyzed condition. We considered the evidence justified us in laying the matter before the nearest magistrate, some 60 miles distant, and, if possible, procuring a warrant for her arrest. It was decided that I should go in with the papers. The time was dead of winter and the lake was frozen solidly from shore to shore.

I finally decided to start alone the next evening and being the fortunate possessor of a splendid team of dogs looked forward to this trip with enjoyment. My dog team, consisting of four, deserves some description. Part Esquimaux, part wolf hound, tall, clean limbed animals, their usual gait was some six miles per hour, but if pressed they could easily outpace a horse. Once having passed over a route, the foregoer never suffered from a direct course whether a trail showed or not. Herod, Nero, Hero and Moro were their names and I loved them with a great love. Kindly natured and devoted to me, still they would attack anything I wished and were as courageous as lions. Often when viewing a wolf or fox on the ice I would let them out of their harness and if far enough from shore they would catch it and kill it before I could reach them. My caribou was, as usual, made from a fresh Uchogan with buffalo parchment sides and back, lined with fur, on its head a tripod with silver bells. On the collars of each dog were also tripods with bells, and Indian beaded saddle cloths made a very handsome outfit. Amongst the harnesses around the Post was a half-horned named James Sinclair who, speaking both English and Cree fluently, was often employed by me as interpreter, my knowledge of the native language being at that time limited. Calling at the office before my departure he appeared to be uneasy in his mind and on my questioning him as to the trouble, he replied by a question: "Is it true, O-ge-mas-es (little clerk), that you are taking in law papers about that Indian witch?" When I replied in the affirmative, he began to me not to go or, if I would, then to take a companion. After some further questioning the truth came out, he stating this woman was in league with bad spirits and that an evil influence would be sent with me or after me if I insisted on going. I naturally made light of this and, in fact, before starting out, had quite forgotten the matter. Evening came on and about 7.30 I whistled for my dogs which were trained to come to their places, hitched up and away we went. For some miles the trail ran through woods and then came the open lake, wind swept and some twenty-five miles of a traverse to a place called the Bluff. While I lay back in my caribou, comfortably wrapped in furs, the miles slipped by until I was about half way across. By this time a few fleecy clouds had come up, but the moon, stars and the northern lights made the sky still very light. A feeling suddenly came over me that I was no longer alone. Loth to disbelieve, I called out to my dogs. I sat still for a few minutes until the feeling of a presence became stronger, and sitting up in my caribou I saw to the left of the foremost dog about three feet above the ice, a ball of phosphorescent light flaring along and leaving gaps with the dogs, not more than thirty feet from me. This kept changing in size. At times as large as a football and at others not much bigger than a cricket ball. My first impression was that I was asleep, but rubbing my eyes, and kneeling up, and on my spending to them and endeavoring to draw their attention to this luminous light and setting them on it, for the first time in their lives they paid no attention to me, but simply trotted a little faster. I then tried to stop them (as old dog drivers here no reins are used, the trail being governed and guided by voice alone) by gently calling "whoa!" Always they were delighted at this, would look around, stop and gently turn to avoid entanglement in the harness and then lick my face and hands. This time no attention was paid to my call. I was rather afraid they might run away, which would probably mean upsetting of the caribou and being left in the middle of the lake with my uneasy companion. This light, after the lapse of ten hours, as nearly as I could judge the time, became more erratic in its movements, making dances in different directions: coming back quite close to the caribou and then flitting away. It struck me as remarkable, the dogs apparently would not look at it, yet when it approached so close I could see the hair bristling on their necks. Finally it began to move to the northeast towards a large bay called the Dog Hung Bay, where a poor white man was found frozen the winter previous and finally, appearing no larger than a cat's eye in the distance, disappeared.

Reaching the bluff I halted the team and unleashing the dogs led them a little dried buffalo meat; but they were not companionable, seemed oppressed and would not respond to my caresses. Biting at again I made my destination at breakfast time and during the course of the meal related my experience with the mysterious light. Finally this was dropped and the conversation turned to the object of my visit. The magistrate, after carefully examining the evidence, submitted as to the poisoning, decided to issue a warrant for the detention of Wus-ke-ningo, and this I was to take back with me.

After attending to some other business I returned to my post and found that the Indian woman had died to parts unknown. The same evening James Sinclair called and congratulated me on my safe return from what he evidently considered a dangerous mission. He finally asked: "Did you have a good trip?" On my replying "Yes," he said: "Did you see anything?" and like a flash the thought of the mysterious light came to my mind. I then remembered his former prophecy and told him the facts. He did not appear at all surprised; the light, he stated, was an evil spirit sent by Wus-ke-ningo which, if you had followed, nothing more would have been heard of you.

Thinking it all over after Sinclair's departure; his first warning before I started, to the effect that some evil thing would be sent after me; again the extraordinary conduct of my usually fearless dogs and the uneasy appearance of my long residence in Northwest Canada.

I may add the old woman was not heard of again and we burnt her bark tepee with many medicine bags to the great satisfaction of all concerned. The poisoned Indian gradually recovered, but never regained his former strength.

Carrying Dangerous Weapons

Local Authorities Should Check the Sale of Firearms.

Ottawa.—There is a law on the statute books to prevent the indiscriminate sale and improper possession of firearms in Canada, but it is doubtful whether that law is being properly enforced.

While protests against the increasing number of revolvers carried by persons in various cities of Canada are being made in Canada, it is pointed out that there is a law to check the sale and carrying of dangerous weapons, and the provincial, municipal and city authorities wish to enforce it.

SHORT OF BREATH

Could Hardly Walk Without Resting.

When you go to a physician to be examined for any heart trouble one of the first questions he asks is: "Are you short of breath?"

Now, when the heart becomes affected there ensues a feeling of chest constriction, shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness and a weak, shivering, all-over feeling of oppression and anxiety.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the arteries losing Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are just the remedy you require. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mr. Stephen Cross, East Clifford, N.S., writes: "I suffered for five years with heart trouble. I could hardly walk from the house to the barn without resting as I used to get so short of breath. Doctors could not help me. I then bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I felt better after taking them. Now the heart is quite well. I am now helping my son to work the farm, and can truthfully say I feel like a different man."

Price 50c, a box at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Drastic Measures May be Taken in Dealing With Ireland

Message from the King

His Majesty is Grateful for the Reception Given the Prince of Wales.

London.—The King has sent the following telegram to governors of Dominions and States visited by the Prince of Wales on his recent Australasian tour.

"On the return home of the Prince of Wales I ask you to express to the people of the Dominion and colonies he visited, my heartfelt appreciation of the universal affection and loyal enthusiasm evinced towards him throughout his travels. These warm-hearted and spontaneous manifestations of regard for our eldest son have deeply touched the Queen and myself."

"We have followed with pride and admiration the triumphant success of his mission and all the more so when we recognized that these happy results are chiefly due to his own personality, to the buoyant and jovial spirit, in which he has played his part, to his sense of duty and to the unstinting manner in which he has given of his best."

"His and his previous tour have given him special opportunities to gain knowledge of our overseas Dominions and colonies and to become personally acquainted with their people."

"May such intercourse create fresh ties of confidence and devotion between the throne and the generations present and future of these great lands and thus promote the unity, strength and prosperity of the empire."

"To my son this wide and happy experience will ever be a priceless possession."

Crown Lands Available

An increased demand by the public for information regarding land settlement is reported by the Department of the Interior at Ottawa. This increased interest is attributed partly to the fact that Crown lands in Western Canada within fifteen miles of a railway, which heretofore have been reserved for returned men, became available for civilian entry on the 1st of May.

Besides Crown lands that may be available, it is estimated that there are about 200,000 quarter sections of privately owned lands lying idle in the Prairie provinces, most of them within easy reach of railways. The same condition applies, though in a lesser degree, to the older provinces of Canada. This condition is not, however, due to lack of value in the land itself—on the contrary and particularly in the Prairie provinces, much of this idle land is rich in virgin soil, for when one considers Canada's vast land area and its comparatively small population it is at once apparent that a large portion of the area in private ownership must be unoccupied and available for purchase at reasonable prices.

In addition to its activities in connection with the settlement of vacant Crown lands in the Western provinces the Department of the Interior, in co-operation with the Provincial officials, has compiled and published every full particulars regarding unoccupied, privately owned, farm lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. This information which has been published in districts is issued free of charge and includes such details as the price at which the land may be purchased, the terms of sale, acreage suitable for cultivation, nature of soil, and value of buildings. With such information in his possession the intending purchaser may negotiate with owners of land in any district in which he is particularly interested.

In their endeavor to find a suitable location prospective homesteaders or purchasers will find of marked value the dual service which the Department of the Interior through its Natural Resources Intelligence Branch is now in a position to render.

Criminal Offence for Drunk Man to Drive Auto.

Ottawa, May 7.—A series of amendments to the criminal code were introduced in the house Friday afternoon by Hon. C. J. Doherty, minister of justice.

One makes illegal the possession of bombs without lawful excuse; another deals with the existing law in connection with the necessity of permits for the possession of firearms. There is a provision making it an offence for persons who are not married to register at hotels as being married, and another making it an offence for intoxicated persons to drive motor cars. Another provides for adding whippings as one of the punishments for rape, robbery or assault with intent to rob, and yet another for the prosecution of what is known as the game of three-card monte.

Other provisions give a recorder's court jurisdiction and power, if a court of record is in Montreal, to keep its records.

The amending bill was given first reading.

On Friday evening the boys of the Trail Rangers Camp, with the same number of girls, gave Paul and Gordon Clemens a surprise party in the school basement. Books were presented to the boys leaving.
